

BIO DEUTSCHLAND

European Business Development Conference

7 – 8 October 2014 | Dresden | Germany

Vanya Loroach

Dr Vanya Loroach is a life science educator and advisor with a broad expert knowledge in biology, biotechnology, medical information management, health promotion and prevention. Leveraging on his fifteen year experience in innovative educational projects, Dr. Loroach has developed a highly effective method for introductory and continuing education aimed at all professionals, scientists or not, that need to gain a sound understanding of medical biology and biotechnology. He is currently the CEO and Head of Principal Trainer at Loroach Communication & Training in Life Sciences.

Since 2007, some two thousand professionals from nearly two hundred companies and organizations, including top executives, have benefitted from Dr Loroach's services. His clients come from many sectors: pharma, biotech, medtech, food industry, sports, environment, engineering, finance, legal, academic research, governments, NGOs and international organizations.

In 2012, Dr Loroach was appointed Professor at Business School Lausanne, where he teaches biology and biotechnology for sustainable business practices.

Dr Loroach is a member of the Swiss Biotech Association Executive Office and his courses are endorsed by this country-wide organization. He is currently heading the development of the Swiss Biotech Association Academy, a new educational platform for integrative learning of all essential scientific and business foundations of the biotech industry.

Dr Loroach holds a Ph.D. in Molecular Biology and Genetics from the University of California at Santa Cruz, USA.